

URL: <http://www.mcgcompany.com>

E-mail: mcgcompany@naver.com

AMERICAN SPYCRAFT

2

Spying involves obtaining information that is considered to be secret among the eyes of the public. Spycrafts are the electronic equipment's that are used in the private surveillance to private customers through the use of converting GPRS tracking systems and cameras that are usually hidden. GPRS tracking involves getting signals from the cameras, which have been set at specific locations to communicate images of terrorism. The American Spycraft has been experiencing several setbacks in their course of operation. The challenges that the American spycraft faces are mainly orchestrated by terrorists who have staged their effort to reduce the powers of America. Although the challenges are inevitable, America has invested in research to increase strategies that will ensure efficiency in the spycraft.

The American intelligence officers have always considered money as the key factor of establishing good and trustworthy relationships with the spies and when they have turned themselves, they always do the for money on the line but not for the required reasons. The American spycraft should stop considering money in establishing relationships with the spies but rather base their relationship on trust and commitment in their duties. This will ensure that the spies who are involved with the CIA are not effectively diddled and this will help in reducing their desperations for sources. They should also not assume the security protocols as in the case of Folge where they presumed that the FSB would forget the security protocols and rather take bait.

The CIA should also consider stopping the spying on other nation's territory Spycraft of America has several strengths. It encompasses proper planning to indicate the compass and the atlas operations instead of the practical purposes. This saves the amount of time needed to trace things and fast communication. For instance, secured communications in Moscow was set up by the street atlas with drop dead. In this scenario; one individual, who was later collected by another individual, would have left the materials. The American spycraft considered using the GPRS instead of the compass since they give out a signal that can be tracked.

The American spycraft is always willing to work with people so as to obtain information, which is crucial to them. After the reforms that were initiated by President Bush, the Agency has started to gain public confidence. General Powell was quoted saying that he will accept public opinion and integrate it with what he has planned. Powell accepted to follow the views of the public to increase the confidence of the people and with the intelligence service. Through the use of spycraft, mistrust to the security agency is developed and even creating enmity between states.

The approach used by the American spycraft is considered to be clumsy. Carrying materials like letters cannot be considered as a bizarre as it would indicate that the outline and approve the commitment for compensation of the fledging agent who had a lot of money which was intended to presume the encouragement for cooperation.

The spycraft regulators are politically affiliated as they demonstrate evidence in a partisan manner. Sometimes the spycraft department conceals evidence that is of paramount importance to the public so that it can please its masters. For instance, the department destroyed at least two harsh tapes of harsh interrogations in 2005 so that it could hide delicate secrets sought by Congressional committee, the Sept. 11 commission and the courts. The spy masters were brought to trial for exercising their duty and powers to please politicians instead of the public for which they are employed for. The Agency tried to convince the public that there was nothing wrong in hiding the terrorism evidence from them. The Senate Democrats called for criminal investigations, which could have seen the Agency disbanded for being affiliated to politicians. Washington also faced a problem of technicalities and how to secretly conduct criminal investigations against the spycraft agency.

In conclusion, strengthening American relationship with other countries will also enhance security in the sense that friendly countries cannot do any harm to one another. Trade ties will be advanced in an environment where two countries are in agreement. Strengthening top national security priorities like dealing with countries that produce nuclear weapons can increase national security. According to NSS, the military ought to be equipped to deal with the rising cases of nuclear weapons. In this case, America will be seeking to counteract the productions of weapons that do mass destruction. The military is the intelligence part of NSS that secures America in the homeland and globally. By destroying threat militia like the Al Qaeda, America will be in a safe environment. These militia are known for destabilizing the smooth running of a government with its activities. The strategic approach to be employed includes the employment of plans that will see America's domestic and international crisis dealt with in a diplomatic manner. A strategic approach defines the world that NSS will deal with. This includes the advancement of the national values and improvement of international relations that will promote peace and security.

Reference

Jeffreys-Jones, Rhodri. In Spies We Trust. Edition: N/A. Oxford University Press, 2013. Print.

ISBN: 9780199580972